

Paul Koenig

Here in the bookstore
Thinking of what I'd wrote you
I write this poem

His mother
made him quit
the accordian.

Excerpts from the Collected Writer's Biographies of Paul Koenig

"Paul Koenig once won an argument with a Parisian taxi driver and his poetry has been described as noir surrealism. His poetry has appeared in places. Paul Koenig has appeared in places. He's won awards. He lives in an apartment with his books and dirty dishes. His mother made him quit the accordion."

- Written by Paul Koenig

