AND WHILE YOU'RE AT IT

FRANCEYE

you newly elected so-called progressive majority, right now without waiting another minute, please step up and require the White House to re-install the solar panels Jimmy Carter put there and Ronald Reagan took off. We're in a state of national emergency, as anyone who has to breathe to live will tell you, and this would be a sign to us as we gasp that you are really opposed to universal extermination by asphyxiation. The president, we know,
doesn't have a clue,
but you, you know,
do claim you do.

francEyE writes prolifically in a style often compared to Ron Koertge and William Carlos Williams. She frequents poetry readings in Los Angeles County and in the San Francisco Bay Area. francEyE has published in countless journals including: Pearl, Chiron Review, Comet, and Blue Satellite. She is the author of one book, Snaggletooth in Ocean Park, published by Sacred Beverage Press and now out of print; one chapbook, Amber Spider (available from Pearl); an unpublished chapbook, Things; and two unpublished books, Call, to be published this year by Rose of Sharon Press, and Grandma Stories.
