Changing History

Ideas Aubrey

I'm tired of seeing color
The color of my skin shed like dead skin dry my face
I see beauty the cocoa butter shea butter coconut oil around my body
I feel it

My African roots in my my skin
50 shades of Africa
50 shades of my people
50 Lions of Justice
Do they see my color of my skin
Do they judge us
So much hate
tried to lock us up
Putting us in locked cages
And throwing away the key

We have broke at the cages
We are sharing ours voice around the world

I do not want to be a hashtag
I don't want to be on social media
I do not want to be on the news

It's time to take a stand
To start a revolution
To educate my children
To educate my brothers
To educate my sisters

I'm tired of seeing color bleeding through My eyes
Wrapping a tears off my face

I am not going to run
I'm not going to be afraid
I want the feel to sunset on my face
I want to change history Past, Future and present

This is the color of my skin
The color I'll look at my face
Strong and beautiful That's My African Roots rise

No one that's going to take my color
This is my color of my skin

Cobalt Poets Series # 435 ~ July 7, 2020 ~ PoetrySuperHighway.com/cobalt

Ideas Aubrey is a Youth Educator, Poet, and Spoken Word artist! Ideas open up his heart on stage and let his audience feel better walking out than when they walked in. His energy and positive vibe come from his personal life experiences. Ideas travel around to open mics to spread wisdom from his heart