Cobalt Poets Series # 493 ~ September 7, 2021 ~ PoetrySuperHighway.com/cobalt

Tapping

Lynda V. E. Crawford

I tap into my mother

and she into hers
and she into hers

and on

light repeated
audible blows

to

tremble, vibrate
umbilical cords

shed words

Lynda V. E. Crawford has lived in the US longer than her childhood home Barbados. Both homes sway and punctuate her writing. Lynda writes poetry vignettes. She's been a journalist, copywriter, website manager, and email marketer. Poetry won't let go.