INFINITESIMAL STARS

I shrink stars small enough
to fit in my faded brown
treasure chest in my closet.

Equipped with my butterfly
net I capture them as they fall
from the heavens.

I quickly lock them up,
and they jounce against
the wooden walls.

The frame becomes illuminated,
and as I rejoice,
I lose the key.

Cobalt Poets Series # 499 ~ October 19, 2021 ~ PoetrySuperHighway.com/cobalt

SOPHIA FALCO

Sophia Falco is the author of Farewell Clay Dove published by UnCollected Press (May, 2021). She is the winner of The Mirabai Prize for Poetry, and was nominated for a Pushcart Prize. Falco graduated magna cum laude along with the highest honors in the Literature Department at The University of California, Santa Cruz. In addition, she is a dedicated volunteer blogger for The International Bipolar Foundation since April 2020. She is a faithful poet since she finds poetry essential to her understanding of the universe.