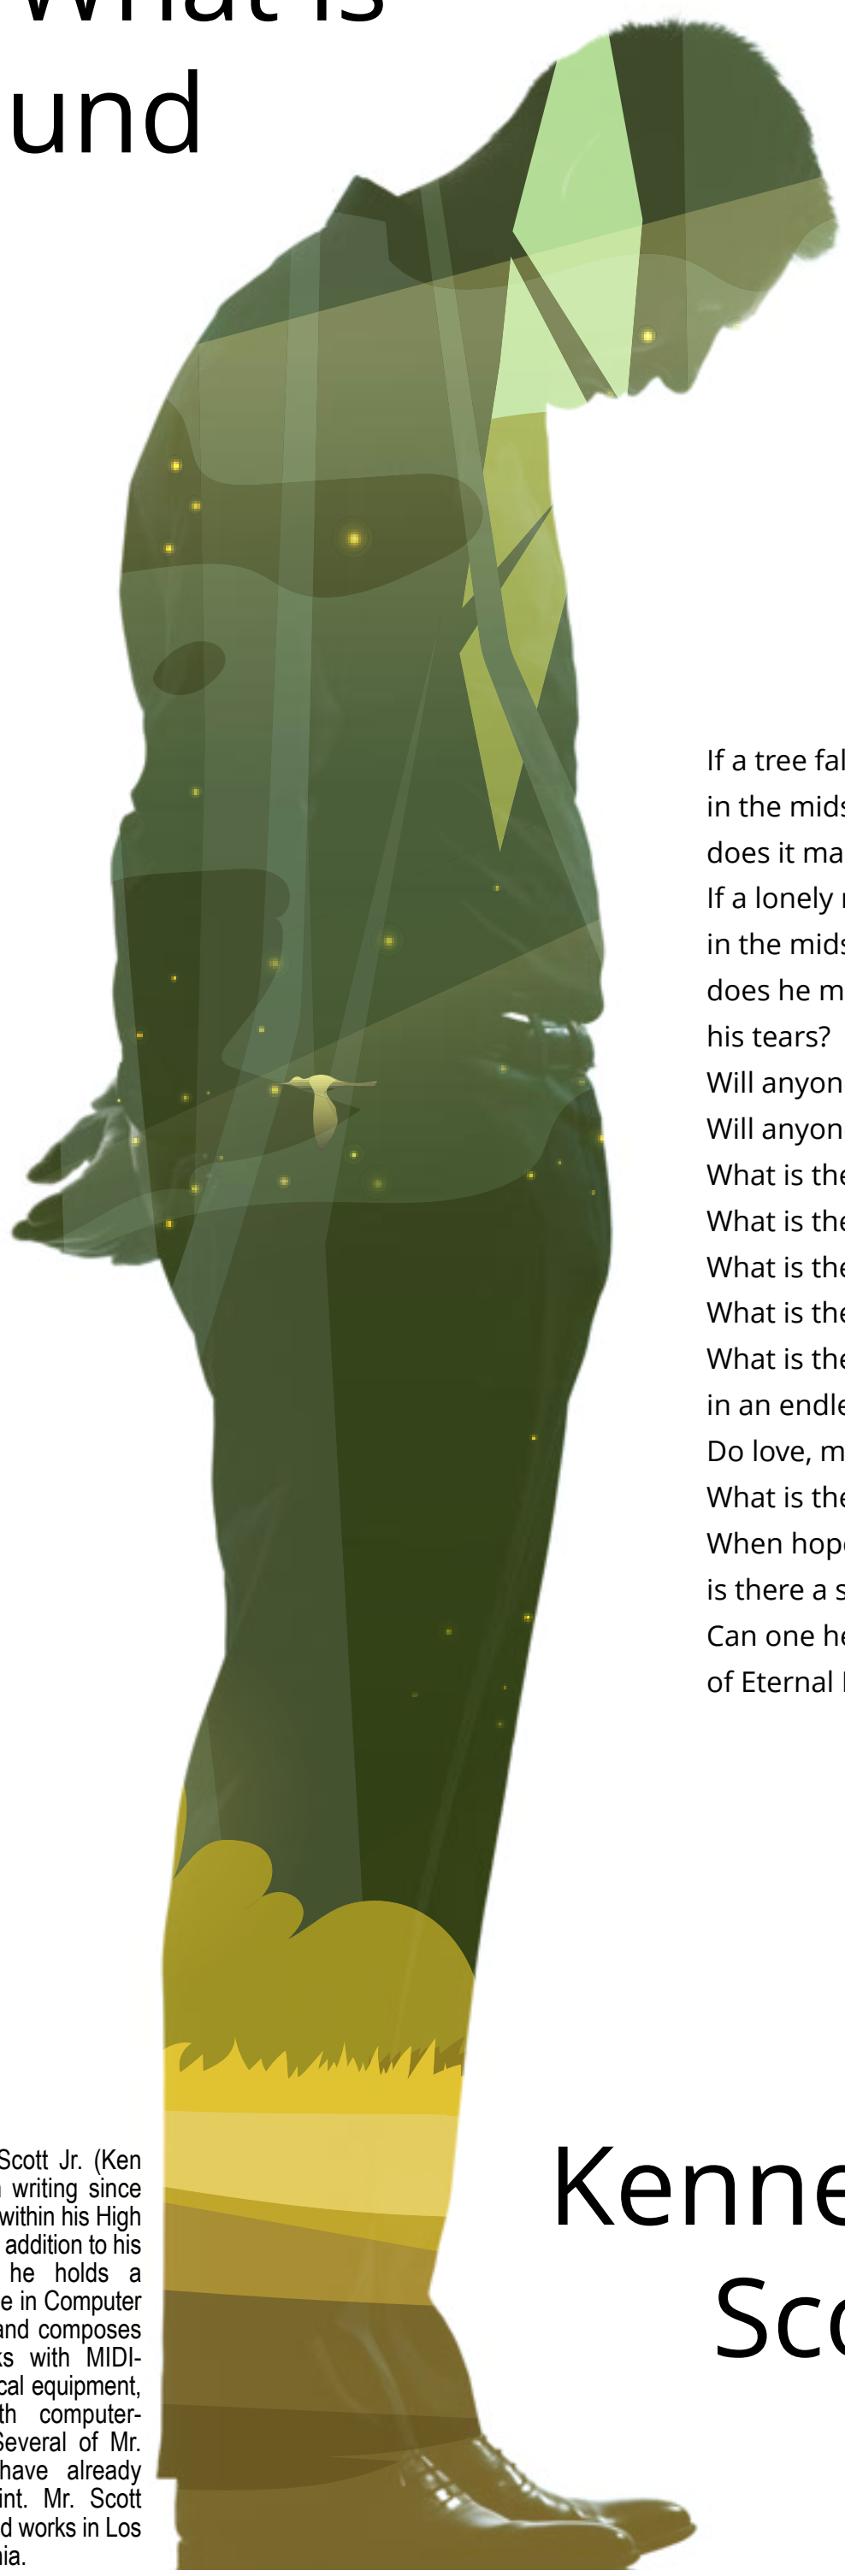
What is the Sound



If a tree falls
in the midst of an abandoned forest,
does it make a sound?
If a lonely man falls
in the midst of an abandoned home, does he make a sound? Will anyone hear his tears?
Will anyone understand?
Will anyone care?
What is the sound of one hand clapping?
What is the sound of one tear falling?
What is the sound of one heart breaking?
What is the sound of one soul weeping?
What is the sound of one lonely man lost
in an endless abandoned wilderness?
Do love, mercy, and forgiveness have a sound?
What is the sound of healing?
When hope is restored to the heart,
is there a sound?
Can one hear the Sound of Eternal Love?

Kenneth Irving Scott Jr. (Ken Scott) has been writing since 1982, beginning within his High School years. In addition to his writing career, he holds a Bachelors Degree in Computer Science, plays and composes for piano, works with MIDI-compatible musical equipment, and works with computer-graphics art. Several of Mr. Scott's works have already appeared in print. Mr. Scott currently lives and works in Los Angeles, California.

Kenneth Irving Scott Jr.

Cobalt Poets Series # 457 ~ December 8, 2020 ~ PoetrySuperHighway.com/cobalt / "What is the Sound" is from Various Works by Kenneth Irving Scott, Jr. (Volume 60)